

What About Bob

Award-winning outdoor writer and photographer Bob Humphrey is considered one of the country's leading authorities on deer biology, behavior and hunting. That reputation has been cemented through his numerous articles in national magazines like Deer & Deer Hunting, North American Whitetail, American Hunter and Outdoor Life. He has also contributed to several books.

An insightful and dynamic speaker, he is frequently invited to be a featured presenter at sporting shows, expos and special events. He also does seminars at sportsman's clubs and sporting goods retailers, where his expertise and enthusiasm make him a favorite with audiences.

"What sets him apart from many other communicators is that he is both an accomplished whitetail hunter and a professional wildlife biologist. He has the unique ability to speak both the hunter and biologist language and be able to blend it into a package all can understand. This gift has allowed him to tell both the hunter's and whitetail's story, like few in America"

--Charles Alsheimer, contributing editor to Deer & Deer Hunting magazine

Deer hunters represent the largest segment of the hunting community. And among those who participate, the quest for sound advice and information is nearly as insatiable as their quest for success. That is why Humphrey's name is sure to draw crowds of deer hunting enthusiasts who are eager to learn more about their favorite avocation. As you start lining up your guest speakers for the coming show season, I hope you will consider inviting New England's most popular and widely-read outdoor writer and deer hunting authority.
